Exhibit examines Grand Manan's history

The Grand Manan Island Art Gallery is pleased to announce an exciting new exhibit "Bygone Days of Grand Manan Island" by artist Bev Cary. Joining Cary is an exhibit by the Junior Art Club.

Our opening show of the season celebrates artists of all ages on Grand Manan Island. An opening night reception with refreshments will be held June 21 at 7 p.m.

Cary was born in Woodward's Cove, Grand Manan Island, in 1934. He's always enjoyed a keen interest in the history of Grand Manan Island where he has lived his entire life, so far. His exhibit takes viewers back into island history and tells the story of "what was."

Bev Cary used to draw as a child, and started painting in 1971. He loves acrylic and enjoys the freedom and time to create and paint in his art studio. Bev has had a rich career centered around the fishing industry and has done everything from crab, lobster and weir fishing to working in the Coast Guard, to teaching community college and being a village councilor.

The Junior Art Club meets Tuesday nights with Reverend Dana Dean, Lillian Wilcox, Penny O'Neill, Barb Leslie, Joanne Robinson and Tam Greenley at St. Paul's Hall in Grand Harbour. Island children come together to learn about art, to celebrate creativity and mostly to have a lot of fun. Guest artists join the children to share their painting techniques. This year's show features our artist's picks coupled with paintings of mountain scenes "in the round".

Works by budding artists: Ava Brown (11), Heilyn Clinch (10), Willow Clinch (10), Clein Fleet (12), Kyla Fox (12), Carson Harvey (8), Isaac Hettrick (8) and Lanaya Harvey (11), Zoe Ingalls (10), Lawron Ingersoll (12), Emily Ingersoll (10), Kaitlyn Knight (11), Allie Newman (12), Alexandra Garin-Nichole (12) Crystal Noble (13), Aria Robicheau (8), Layla Worthen (11), Maggie Worthen (9), and Jay Zwicker (11), will be on display.

This exhibit has been kindly sponsored by Coastal Transport.
