A heart for every plea

Painter, poet and international humanitarian, Newton Rowell Bowles (1916-2012) travelled the world, making a difference for countless of millions through UNICEF. Yet it was the small island of Grand Manan, and its friendly folk, that had the greatest effect on him, and he returned to the island every summer for decades. To honour Bowles's legacy, the Grand Manan Art Gallery opens a retrospective exhibition of his artwork this week. Story by Angela Kippers
